What changes for you

- A loss is paid at replacement cost, so a damaged board is rebuilt, not depreciated.
- No co-insurance clause: you aren’t penalized at claim time for the value you carry.
- Business Interruption is available to cover lost profit and loan payments while a board is down.

How the program works

- One master policy written for billboard owners, called a risk purchasing group.
- Every member renews together each April 1.
- Each member signs a membership agreement and a shared-limits disclosure.

Next steps

1. Review this proposal with Casey and your board.
2. Choose whether to add Business Interruption and at what amount.
3. Sign the membership agreement and shared-limits disclosure.
4. Choose to pay in full or through premium financing.

Premiums are as quoted by Casey O'Quinn on October 13, 2026, based on the replacement costs you provided ($70,000 today; $1.2 million with four boards at year end) and a projected FY 2026–27 gross revenue of $624,000. This proposal summarizes coverage for discussion. The policy’s terms, conditions, limits and exclusions govern, and coverage is subject to underwriting approval. Terrorism and cyber, electronic data and systems are excluded, which matters for digital boards.
